A gradual and late harvest took place between 20th September and 8th October with exceptional quality and low yields. After along, wet winter the plant had sufficient water to compensate for the lack of rain in the summer. The grapes saw ideal end of maturation with cool nights and sunny days that preserved balanced acidity and favored the extraction of fine tannins.

Intense, earthy and multifaceted with complexity gained from ideal maturity and dominance of black fruit and licorice notes. Engaging tannins, tension, imposing structure and a lot of class.

San Román was bottled in March 2013 after spending 24 months in barrels of French and American oak of various ages. A tremendously expressive San Román, perfect for ageing.
