A vintage of contained yields, and rainfall was minimal throughout the cycle. Winter was mild, with no frosts, and spring was moderate and dry, which delayed budbreak until the end of April. After flowering and fruit set, the vines showed fewer bunches due to the lack of water.

A gradual ripening of the grapes, thanks to the cool temperatures at the end of the summer, contributed to an optimal phenolic balance. The grapes were harvested at the beginning of September with a favourable concentration of tannins and aromas.

TASTING

The prominent influence of the Grenache grape in this vintage brings dynamism and fine tannins to a direct, medium-bodied Prima with a clear fruity character.
